

The 100 men and the Monsters

By Gabo

Once Upon a time when the dinosaurs were alive there was a monster with horns, that was 390 feet giraffe stacked on each other and had fangs 500 feet long. Its fangs could chop a T-rex in half. It was as big as 5000 giants taped together.

600 hundred years later humans came alive. A man was fishing near a lake, it was a foggy day, and the monster was still alive and was standing 5 feet away hiding in the fog next to the fisherman.

The dinosaurs were dead, not because of the meteor, but because of the monster.

There were still 9,000,999 trillion people alive, the fisherman got eaten by the monster. One person teamed up with 10 men to defeat the monster. They looked for daggers and swords to fight and conquer the monster. They took down the monster, they had the monster for their dinner but they started to grow fangs and they started to turn into monsters, so there were 10 new monsters but the leader that invited these 10 men did not eat the monster so he looked for 10 more men to come and fight. So, they took 10 monsters down. The monsters turned into slime but then the slime started to connect, and then a bigger monster came. Then it turned into an even bigger monster.

They used all the weapons, the leader found 100 more men to fight the slimy monster, but the slime hit the moon and then it took the moon down to fall into planet earth.

They took a rocket with the 100 men and the leader was an inventor, so he invented a claw to catch the moon and they came back to planet earth and then they were awarded as the best super heroes ever, they got a 100 medals and trophies together they were the monster's super heroes.

And the 100 men live happily ever after.

The End

Gabo

The author